

	Special edition of The Crier of the Glocester Heritage Society	Glocester Heritage Society Job Armstrong Store 1181 Putnam Pike P.O. Box 269 Chepachet, RI 02814  401.568.1866 www.glocesterheritagesociety.org info@glocesterheritagesociety.org Incorporated 1967.
Volume Three	Year 2006	Issue Two
The Glocester Heritage Society identifies, acquires, holds, arranges, restores, maintains, and preserves for posterity buildings, tracts of land and objects of historical, educational, architectural, cultural, and other similar interests of outstanding value within the Town of Glocester, RI.
The Society is delighted to announce The Heritage Garden and House Tour Saturday, June 24, 2006 “One touch of nature makes the whole world kin.” ---William Shakespeare Time of event: Tour runs from 9 a.m. – 3 p.m. Tickets sold at Brown & Hopkins, the Town Trader, Holidaze, Kitson’s Liquors, Glocester Manton Library, and Harmony Library, and the Job Armstrong Store. Admission price: $25 per person (includes lakefront buffet luncheon). Cost without luncheon is $15. Child under 12 when accompanied by an adult is $15 (includes lunch). Cost per child under 12 without lunch is $5.		Editor’s Overview page 2 Tour descriptions Pages 3-6 The Treasurer’s Tempest Page 5 Map of the Tour Page 6

The Crier

Dear Gloucester Heritage Society Members,

As we continue to raise funds for the opening of the Dorr Rebellion Museum at the Pettingill/ Mason House and for the on-going maintenance of the Job Armstrong Store and Evans Schoolhouse, I am pleased to announce to you the upcoming --- and quite invigorating--- event: the Heritage Garden and House Tour.

Last run in the early 1970's, the Tour provides visitors with access to properties not otherwise open to the public. Vice president Jeff Rossi and I are co-facilitating this event, but many others have contributed to the endeavor. We are grateful to graphic designer Kate Malmberg for the elegant brochure. Engineer John Doucette fashioned a map of site locations. GHS president Rose LaVoie invited many property owners to join. John Devine and Diane Scotti created signage. Carole Fry coordinated mailings. Gloucester Town Historian Edna Kent offered expertise. And, even with the backdrop of fire and loss, Harry and Pauline Anderson have been constant sources of support & advice.

I invite you to join in this event. With the long 2006 springtime, the Tour will serve as the official beginning to the warm season of summer. Please read through this newsletter and learn ahead about the generous people who have agreed to share their little pieces of paradise with you.

Do introduce yourself to me at the luncheon finale to the Tour on Saturday, June 24 at Blueberry Pointe on the Lake. The gathering will culminate our celebration of the innate connections among nature, heritage, and sustainability.

Carolyn Fortuna, editor

Board of Directors

President

Rose LaVoie

Vice President

Jeff Rossi

Treasurer

Lauren "Andy" Andrews

Recording Secretary

Carole Fry

Corresponding Secretary

Pauline Anderson

Parliamentarian

Bradley L. Steere

Standing Committees

Archives

Edna Kent

Building

John Doucette

By Laws

Harry Anderson, Leo Gagnon, Frank Stevenson

Editor

Carolyn Fortuna

Grants

Harry Anderson

Membership

Frank Stevenson

Pettingill / Mason House Steering Committee

"Andy" Andrews, John Doucette, Edna Kent, Robert Leach

Ways and Means

Glennis and Henry Beltram

Website

Jill Stevenson

GLOCESTER HERITAGE SOCIETY

Heritage Garden and House Tour

to benefit the maintenance of Glocester Heritage Society Properties including the Job Armstrong Store, the future home of the Dorr Rebellion Museum at the Pettingill/ Mason House and the Evans schoolhouse

SATURDAY
June 24, 2006
9am-3pm

Rain or Shine

1. Job Armstrong Store

1181 Putnam Pike, Chepachet

Non-profit

Host: Rose LaVoie,
GHS president

Built about 1813, this building was the largest of the thirteen dry goods and grocery stores operating during the early 1800's in Chepachet, with four to five clerks working full-time. This is the current headquarters for the Glocester Heritage Society and serves as a tourist center for Tour and town information. Tour buttons may be purchased here the day of the event.

2. Lydia Slocum House

1177 Putnam Pike, Chepachet

Mercantile

Host: Eileen & Charlie Wilson

Believed to be a 1700's trading post, this building features hand-hewn beams, three original fireplaces, and a beehive oven. The building was built in at least five stages. The Carlton family resided here before it became a hardware store and electric shop. It now houses antiques and collectibles and is known as the Town Trader.

3. Johnson Farm/Doty Evans Homestead

33 Money Hill Road, Chepachet

Mercantile

Host: Debbie Johnson

For 150 years, this was a working farm, first for Doty Evans and, later, for William Hopkins and his daughter Ella. The latter family owned the business currently known as Brown & Hopkins General Store.

Ella was renowned for hosting travelers. Many a bachelor stayed here while courting his bride to be. Open on day of event from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. only.

4. Col. Asa Kimball House

Private home

Host: Frank Williams

Built before 1753 by Col. Asa Kimball, who served in the French and Revolutionary Wars, this charming Colonial Cape is set back from the road and overlooks the Baptist Meetinghouse.

1229 Putnam Pike,
Chepachet

5. The future Dorr Rebellion Museum in the Pettingell/ Mason House

1043 Putnam Pike
Chepachet

Non-profit
Host: Edna Kent
Gloicester Town
Historian

Robert Leach
Architect

This is the centerpiece of the Tour. The RI Historical and Preservation Commission, Champlain Foundations, Blackstone River Valley National Heritage Corridor, Town of Gloicester, Battle Foundation, and generosity of many private donors have fostered this restoration. Built circa 1750, the structure is a five bay, 12 room, 2.5 story Colonial with center chimney, five fireplaces, smoke chamber, beehive oven, and 19th century ell. Heavy timber frame (post & beam) and chimney, hand-hewn timbers, narrow stairways with steep risers, and wide plank floorboards are significant. Share in the stories of the Mason family and Dorr Rebellion while Touring.

6. *Brown/ Fenner/
Burlingame House*

471 Chopmist Hill Road
Chepachet

Private gardens
Host: Marg Peterson

Overlooking Cherry Valley, this working farm can be traced back to agrarian roots of Gloucester. John Fenner had a slave named Yockwhy (who was one of the very few slaves in Gloucester). The Peterson family moved to the farm in 1965 and restored the house, improving the grounds and fields as well. They called their place Greyledge Farm, feeling it was appropriate both due to the topography of the land and also because they discovered that butter was once made here under that name.

7. Farnum's Gardens

150 Paris Irons Road
Chepachet

Private gardens
Host: Carolyn and William Farnum

Meticulously maintained country gardens celebrate northerly zoned vegetables and flowers. A pond shelters native wildflowers within a shady wood. The home backdrop of a log cabin makes a picturesque setting for blueberry and rhubarb cultivation as well as a little homemade wine.

8. The Rossi Home

780 Durfee Hill Road
Chepachet

Private gardens
Host: Jeff Rossi,
Master Gardener

This decade-old garden emulates the feeling of age in an era of new construction. The garden is viewed at it best during the early morning or late afternoon because large trees surround the open area and cast a pleasing, filtered light.

9, Bittersweet Cottage Garden

Sawmill Road Harmony

Private gardens
Host: Cheryl Cadwell
Master Gardener,
GreenSource garden columnist

Landscaped following the principles of sustainable gardening, these diverse and flower-filled gardens are used to demonstrate to other gardeners that having a beautiful garden does not require environmentally harmful practices or a lot of hard work. Choosing tough, disease resistant plants makes gardening easier and produces a garden that is attractive throughout the seasons.

10. Blueberry Pointe on the Lake

115 Sand Dam Road
Chepachet

Private gardens
Host: Carolyn Fortuna,
Steve Hanley

Buffet luncheon is served here.

Blueberry Pointe on the Lake is on a two-acre lake island. Built as a bass-fishing camp around 1929, the property has a natural umbrella of shade from century-old oak trees and is landscaped with informal perennial gardens. A sunny and manicured private white sand beach with dock is on the eastern side of the island and faces the Scotsun shoreline contribution to the Gloucester Land Trust. The rocky western exposure of the island faces an undeveloped shoreline donated by the Hopkins family to the Gloucester Land Trust.

11. Glocester Greens & Goats

1535 Snake Hill Road,
Glocester, RI

Goat farm and merchantile
Host: Carolyn & Ray Lapointe

Mini-Nubian goats, salad mixes of different varieties, seasonally unique vegetables, handmade goat soap and lotions are some of the specialties of this special site. Four mother goats have spring broods, and visitors are welcomed to hand-feed the young, making this a really friendly Tour site.y

12. Woodbridge Nursery

1046 Hartford Pike
[corner of 101 & 102]
N. Scituate

Mercantil

Host: Debbie Pierson Luchka
and Steve Luschka

Woodbridge Greenhouses is a garden center providing zone appropriate advice and plants for southern New England gardeners. Visit the four greenhouses, ranging from annuals through perennials, and discover new ways to make your own garden spectacular.

13. Bonniedale Farms

Snake Hill Road
N. Scituate

portable

Working farm and petting zoo

Host:

After a long day of Touring, stop by Bonnie Dale Farms. Farm animals and pony rides will appeal to any young ones in your group, and the wide variety of Western apparel, boots, and clothing are hard to find items in this day and age of corporate apparel.

14. Quintessential Gardens at Fort Hill Farms

260 Quaddick Road
Thompson, CT

Mercantile

Host: Kristin Orr

Fair, rich confusion is all the aim of the quintessential English perennial garden, and the greater the confusion, the richer. Cottage gardens emerge when hundreds of perennials in each of the 66 gardens bloom in succession in all colors of the alphabet without stopping from May to November. This defies formality and rigid lines. However, there also are very “designed” gardens in Celtic Knots and Labyrinths. So, bring your camera and be prepared to learn about perennials, strawberries, organic gardening, and a deeply-rooted work ethic for one strong woman to save her 1000-acre farm.

Heritage Garden and House Tour

Glocester Heritage Society

June 24, 2006

“One touch of nature makes the whole world kin.”

---William Shakespeare

#	Property type	Name of property	Name of Host	Address	Description	Bath-room
1	Non-profit	Job Armstrong Store	Rose LaVoie, GHS president	1181 Putnam Pike, Chepachet	Built about 1813, this building was the largest of the thirteen dry goods and grocery stores operating during the early 1800's in Chepachet, with four to five clerks working full-time. This is the current headquarters for the Glocester Heritage Society and serves as a tourist center for Tour and town information.	✓
2a	mercantile	Lydia Slocum House	Eileen and Charlie Wilson	1177 Putnam Pike, Chepachet	Believed to be a 1700's trading post, this building features hand-hewn beams, three original fireplaces, and a beehive oven. The building was built in at least five stages. The Carlton family resided here before it became a hardware store and electric shop. It now houses antiques and collectibles as the Town Trader.
2b	Mercantile	Brown and Hopkins General Store	Liz and Scott McIntyre	1179 Putnam Pike, Chepachet	Timothy Wilmarth erected the building in 1799. In 1809 Ira Evans purchased it and started the general store. After several changes in ownership, James L. Brown and William W. Hopkins assumed the business, and members of Brown and Hopkins operated the store 'til 1964.
3	mercantile	Johnson Farm/ Doty Evans Homestead	Debbie Johnson	33 Money Hill Road, Chepachet	For 150 years, this was a working farm, first for Doty Evans and, later, for William Hopkins and his daughter Ella. The latter family owned the business currently known as Brown & Hopkins General Store. Ella was renowned for hosting travelers. Many a bachelor stayed here while courting his bride to be. Open on day of event from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m..
4	Private home	Col. Asa Kimball House	Frank Williams	1229 Putnam Pike, Chepachet	Built before 1753 by Col. Asa Kimball, who served in the French and Revolutionary Wars, this charming Colonial Cape is set back from the road and overlooks the Baptist Meetinghouse.	✓
5	Non-profit	The future Dorr Rebellion Museum in the Pettingell/ Mason House	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Edna Kent, Glocester Town Historian ● Robert Leach, Architect 	1043 Putnam Pike, Chepachet	The RI Historical and Preservation Commission, Champlain Foundations, Blackstone River Valley National Heritage Corridor, Town of Glocester, Battle Foundation, and many private donors have fostered this restoration. Built circa 1750, the structure is a five bay, 12 room, 2.5 story Colonial with center chimney, five fireplaces, smoke chamber, beehive oven, and 19 th century ell. Heavy timber frame (post & beam) and chimney, hand-hewn timbers, narrow stairways with steep risers, and wide plank floorboards are significant.	✓ port- able

6	Private gardens	Brown/Fenner/Burlingame House	Marg Peterson	471 Chopmist Hill Road, Chepachet	Overlooking Cherry Valley, this working farm can be traced back to agrarian roots of Glocester. John Fenner had a slave named Yockwhy (who was one of the very few slaves in Glocester). The Peterson family moved to the farm in 1965 and restored the house, improving the grounds and fields as well. They called their place Greyledge Farm, due to topography and because butter was once made here under that name.
7	Private gardens	Farnum's Gardens	Carolyn and William Farnum	150 Paris Irons Road	Meticulously maintained country gardens celebrate northerly zoned vegetables and flowers. A pond shelters native wildflowers within a shady wood. The home backdrop of a log cabin makes a picturesque setting for blueberry and rhubarb cultivation as well as a little homemade wine. ☺
8	Private gardens	The Rossi Home	Jeff Rossi, Master Gardener	780 Durfee Hill Road, Chepachet	This decade-old garden emulates the feeling of age in an era of new construction. The garden is viewed at it best during the early morning or late afternoon because large trees surround the open area and cast a pleasing, filtered light.
9	Private gardens	Bittersweet Cottage Garden	Cheryl Cadwell, Master Gardener, GreenSource garden columnist	Sawmill Road, Harmony, RI	Landscaped following the principles of sustainable gardening, these diverse and flower-filled gardens are used to demonstrate to other gardeners that having a beautiful garden does not require environmentally harmful practices or a lot of hard work. Choosing tough, disease resistant plants makes gardening easier and produces a garden that is attractive throughout the seasons.	✓
10	Private gardens	Blueberry Pointe on the Lake Buffet luncheon is served here.	Carolyn Fortuna, Steve Hanley	115 Sand Dam Road, Chepachet	Blueberry Pointe on the Lake is on a two-acre lake island. Built as a bass-fishing camp around 1929, the property has a natural umbrella of shade from century-old oak trees and is landscaped with informal perennial gardens. Vantage points include Glocester Land Trust properties: the Scotsun Forest Reserve and Hopkins uplands	✓
11	Goat farm and merchantile	Glocester Greens & Goats	Carolyn & Ray Lapointe	1535 Snake Hill Road, Glocester, RI	Mini-Nubian goats, salad mixes of different varieties, seasonally unique vegetables, handmade goat soap and lotions are some of the specialties of this special site. Four mother goats have spring broods, and visitors are welcomed to hand-feed the young, making this a really friendly Tour site.
12	Mercantile	Woodbridge Nursery	Debbie Pierson Luchka and Steve Luschka	1046 Hartford Pike [corner of 101 & 102], N. Scituate	Woodbridge Greenhouses is a garden center providing zone appropriate advice and plants for southern New England gardeners. Visit the four greenhouses, ranging from annuals through perennials, and discover new ways to make your own garden spectacular.	✓ porta ble

13	Working farm and petting zoo	Bonniedale Farms	The friendly staff and crew	1007 Snake Hill Road, N. Scituate, RI	Farm animals and pony rides will appeal to any young ones in your group, and the Western apparel, boots, and clothing are hard to find items in this day and age of corporate apparel.
14	Mercantile	Quintessential Gardens at Fort Hill Farms	Kristin Orr	260 Quaddick Road, Thompson, CT 06277	Fair, rich confusion is all the aim of the quintessential English perennial garden, and the greater the confusion, the richer. Cottage gardens emerge when hundreds of perennials in each of the 66 gardens bloom in succession in all colors of the alphabet without stopping from May to November. This defies formality and rigid lines. However, there also are very "designed" gardens in Celtic Knots and Labyrinths. So, bring your camera and be prepared to learn about perennials, strawberries, organic gardening, and a deeply-rooted work ethic for one strong woman to save her 1000-acre farm.	✓

AN ATTEMPT BY REBEL TROOPS FROM CHEPACHET TO STORM THE STATEHOUSE WAS NARROWLY AVERTED WHEN THE REBELS REALIZED THEY WERE VASTLY OUTNUMBERED BY TROOPS OF THE RHODE ISLAND MILITIA.

This and other memorabilia and artifacts will appear in Rhode Island's newest museum. It will commemorate the Dorr Rebellion of 1842 and those dedicated Rhode Islanders who fought for equal voting rights for all its citizenry.

The Gloucester Heritage Society cordially invites you to attend an Open House to be held in conjunction with the Heritage Garden and House Tour on Saturday, June 24, 2006. One purpose of the event is celebrating the completion of Phase One restoration (the exterior) to the Pettingell/ Mason House (Route 44, Chepachet), built circa 1744. It is an architectural gem with many original features still intact today. The house will become the home of the Dorr Rebellion Museum. The location is fitting, as the house was equipped as a field hospital for state militia troops in the event of casualties during the Dorr Rebellion.

Restoration accomplishments to the Pettingell/ Mason House would not have occurred without a vigorous fund raising drive. Revenues to date of $300,000 have already been applied toward restoration costs. An additional $70,000 remains committed and outstanding subject to the Gloucester Heritage Society raising separately an equal amount totaling $70,000.

This letter is an invitation for you to join us in this final lap, where $1.00 donated gets $2.00 in spendable funds. Your gift today is greatly appreciated.

--- by Lauren "Andy" Andrews, GHS treasurer

Heritage House & Garden Tour
Gloucester Heritage Society
June 24, 2006